Whose Say-so is Best?
With nearly all med cines put up for sale through druggists, one has to take the maker's say-so alone as to their curative value. Of course, such testimony is not that of a disinterested party and accordingly is not to be given the same credit as if written from disinterested motives. Dr. Pierce's medicines, however, form a single and thorefore stricking the confidence of invalids doesn't so or praise. Thief Captured by Woman. Miss Pauline S. Szabe, of Brooklyn, tall, slender, iair, athletic and pretty, with big clear, hazel eyes, was walking through Nassau street, New York, yesterday afternoon on her way to see a girl friend. The narrow street curb and roadway alike were filled with the usual crowd. In her squirrel must she carried a pocketbook containing $2 in cash and receipts which show Miss Pauline is qualifying at a night school for a stenographer's job.

Suddenly a slender young man in a sweater bumped into her. As she swerved he thrust one hand into her must, gave her fingers a vicious twist and wrenched from her grasp the pocketbook. Another instant and he was diving through the hurrying press of brokers and clerks and

After him sped the girl, with a deter-mined gleam in those big hazel eyes. For a block it was a hot race. The fugitive bowled over two men, but a third blocked his way, and before he co around Miss Szabe's grip was on his coat collar. He twisted about and struck at her wildly. Bang! her strong little fist in its skin-tight glove took him on the

By this time there was a crowd 20 deep around the pair and more coming at the rate of 200 a minute. Two citizens laid detaining hands on the weeping cap tive, but Miss Szabe never turned him loose until a policeman came and put the man under arrest. In his pocket was found Miss Szabe's purse. The young woman accompanied the policeman and the prisoner to the station-house. As soon as the pickpocket had been brought in Sergeant Haerle recognized him as one of a pair who had been picked up in the precinct on Thanksgiving night.
